14.00-16.00	Roundtable discussion: Solutions to improve carbon pricing and energy policy integration
	Facilitator: Ignacio Fernandez, Chile
	Speakers:
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Christina Hood, IEA – The IEA’s approach to carbon pricing - energy policy interactions</li> <li>• Maurits Blanson Henkemans, Netherlands - Netherlands views on managing policy combinations</li> <li>• Felix Matthes, Öko Institute – Policy mapping as a tool for understanding policy integration</li> <li>• Dries Acke, European Climate Foundation – The Roadmaps project</li> </ul>
	This discussion will focus on the solutions that can be implemented to keep carbon pricing and energy policies aligned over time, and their strengths and weaknesses. In particular, it will explore how countries have struck the balance between flexibility and policy stability. Policy integration also requires co-ordination across government, so this discussion will therefore also focus on how countries have approached policy integration from an institutional perspective, including considering the challenges of co-ordination between local, regional, national, and international level policies.
